NO ABLIB, MORAN; TO YOU SO, SAYS CARRIGAN

Phil Manager Admits Weakness in Pitching Department Cost Championship

FAIRLY WON' LUDERUS

Captain of Vanquished Team Credits Victors, but Blames Bad Luck

NATIONAL LEAGUE BASEBALL

PARK, Oct. 13.—Manager Pat Moran, of the whipped Phillies, explained the loss of today's game by declaring his pitching was weaker than in the four preceding games.

He said he had no alibi. Captain Luderus said his team was fairly beaten, though the second, third and fourth games were lost by hard luck.

The substance of the statement of Manager Carrigan, of the Red Sox, was "I told you so."

Moran—We lost today's game because our pitching was not as good as it was in the first four games. The victory of the Red Sox today was clean-cut, and we haven't any alibi to make.

Luderus—Mayer was not right when he went in today, but we would have won if that if we could have mustered up a hit at the proper time. I am greatly disappointed that we did not win, but there is no excuse, as all of the Red Sox were earned and made by hard hitting. I want to say that all of our fellows gave the best they had in every way. We tried hard to win, but the breaks in the second, third and fourth games prevented.

Carrigan—I see that a lot of people are saying that if the games in Boston had been played in Philadelphia the Phillies would have won both. Well, they had the chance today, but Luderus' drive over the fence was the only hit of any worth that the Phillies made. I said yesterday that the series would end in Philadelphia, and you see I was right. We should have saved the game long before we did. But the Phillies had good luck in scoring three of their runs against

MISS PHIPPS SCORES BIG GOLF VICTORY

Merion Golf Semifinal Match Mrs. Barlow Is Defeated, 6 Up and 5 to Play

Decided surprise was sprung in the final round of the women's championship of the Merion Cricket Club this morning when Miss Anita Phipps defeated Ronald H. Barlow, 6 up and 5 to would be unfair to say that Miss S did not deserve to win, seeing the side of her victory, yet it must be said that Mrs. Barlow was not in her normal form as she has been for some time.

Phipps was four up at the turn, as she would, Mrs. Barlow could see her lead on the last half of the day, and the match ended on the second match Mrs. G. S. Munson and Miss Eleanor T. Chandler were matched. All the way round hip and tuck between them, and Mrs. Munson gained the verdict home hole.

FANS' HOPES DASHED AS SOX WIELD BATS

ALEX AND MAYER BAT. Alexander and Mayer took their turns at bat with the regulars. At 1 o'clock the grandstand and upper pavilions were about half full, but the box seats were empty.

Hummel's Band, accompanied by megaphone vocalists, kept up the continuous roll of popular airs.

At 1:30 the Red Sox took the field and engaged in vigorous batting practice. Foster, Ruth and Leonard went up with the other players to take their turns at hitting. Rays was the box for the Red Sox and Thomas behind the bat. After they had been on the field for 20 minutes' batting the Red Sox took their seating places.

PHILS FULL OF PEP. The way the Phillies went after the ball in practice was very encouraging to their followers. The diamond was fast and the infield shot the ball around in a way that proved that they were still fit for action, even though the loss of today's game would mean the loss of the series.

Ten minutes before 2 o'clock Bill Carrigan grabbed a stick and began hitting around the diamond to his infielders. Their work was not so good, and they were full of fire as that of the Phillies.

Ray Collins slammed a lot of drives against the right-field wall to give Harry Hooper practice at handling rebounds.

Foster and Thomas were announced as the Red Sox battery. Otherwise the team line-up today just as the last four games. Before the official figures were announced it was estimated that the greatest crowd that ever saw a game in this park was present.

Although Harry Hooper opened the game with a single on the first ball pitched, Mayer pitched himself out of a hole, retiring Scott on a foul and causing Speaker to force Hooper. Speaker made the final out of the inning on an attempted steal. When Stock, the first man in the Phillies' half was hit by a pitched ball, the crowd went wild.

BREAK FOR PHILS. The breaks began to come the Phillies' way before today's game had been in progress 10 minutes. Mayer got out of a hole in the first inning when Scott, on an attempted sacrifice, popped to Luderus after Hooper had opened with a single. Speaker then forced Hooper, and himself did stealing.

In their half of the first, the Phillies had everything their way. Stock had walked the final out, with two strikes called, single through short as Scott went to cover second. Paskert hit an easy one down the third-base line and was apparently out when he passed in front of first base. Empire O'Leary, in called him safe. Cravath was over-anxious, and hit into a double play, but Luderus drove Bancroft and Paskert over when his long drive to left field went over Lewis' head. For some reason Speaker was playing in very close. Otherwise he would have been able to get the ball. Whitted ended this round with a fly to Speaker.

Neither team could claim any break of luck in the first half of the second. The Red Sox earned a run after two were down on Gardner's triple and Barry's Texas leaguer.

Foster had settled down when his turn came to pitch the second inning and the Phillies were retired in order on two strikes and a pop fly.

The only break in the third inning was that of Mayer, who broke completely. Hooper opened with a home run into the bleachers; then Speaker singled to right and hit into a double play. Moran called Rixey in to replace Mayer, making the first time in the series that a hurler had been removed for weak pitching.

Carrigan immediately shifted his team by sending Del Gainer, a right-handed hitter, to bat and play in place of Hoblitzel, who strikes left handed. Gainer made a quick end of the round by hitting into a double play.

Paskert managed to get a clean single in the third, but he was an easy out stealing after Foster had retired Stock and Bancroft.

Thomas blunder gave the Phillies another break in the fourth, which netted them a run after Fred Luderus had driven the ball over the right-field wall. Nichols had pitched Empire O'Leary, followed with a clean rap to right, on which the former took third. Hooper made a wild throw past Gardner, but the ball bounded back so quickly from the box seats that Nichols had no chance to score.

However, Gardner whipped the ball to the plate. It was low and bounded into the diamond. Instead of attempting to recover the ball Thomas stood still like an Indian cigar sign. Gainer was also safe, so Nichols speeded home with the Phillies' fourth run while the ball rested on the grass.

Johnny Lettice, who has been working with Jack McCarron, says the Allentown Irishman will answer the gang against Scudder Barfield at the National Friday night in great shape.

Tommy O'Dare has clinched a match between Young McGovern and Young Jack Toland for the Douglas A. C.

Eppa Rixey was fortunate in the fifth inning on two occasions. After Foster had singled and Hooper was hit by a pitched ball, a sacrifice by Scott, followed by a single would have tied the score, or a sacrifice and a long fly would have given the Red Sox one run. But Carrigan elected to have Scott hit instead of bunting. The result was an out to Whitted and no advance for the base runners.

With the count three and two on Speaker, Rixey pitched a fast one, far inside, which would have filled the bases and which would have filled the bases with one down had Speaker whiffed. He did not, but he was an easy out on a sacrifice and a long fly would have given the Red Sox one run. But Carrigan elected to have Scott hit instead of bunting. The result was an out to Whitted and no advance for the base runners.

The mush-talked-of short center field allowed the Red Sox to tie the score. Gainer hit batten out a single to Stock, when Lewis hit a high fly which fell just into the crowd in right center. This would have been an easy out on the Braves' field. The next three batsmen went out in order.

With two down in their half of the eighth, George Whitted, who has had numerous opportunities to win games for the Phillies, was up with two men on.

Cravath had been passed and Dugue sent in to run for him. Luderus was hit by a pitched ball. A single from Whitted's bat would probably have meant a run that would have pitched the ball game, but the left-fielder was an easy victim on a weak grounder to Foster.

WOULD BOX O'KEEFE, SAYS TENDLER, IF HE GETS 'HIS' PURSE

Newsboy Boxer Not Afraid of Eddie, But Wants Suitable Consideration—Bouts at Hunting Park

HOUCK OPPOSES PALMER

"Will I box Eddie O'Keefe? Sure, gladly. I get the purse I think I deserve," Law Tandler, the newsboy boxer, said today.

Much interest is being manifested by local fight fans in a proposed match between Tandler and O'Keefe. Bantam bouts have been proving good attractions here this season. Both O'Keefe and Tandler are fighting in splendid shape.

O'Keefe has defeated Jimmy Taylor and Al Shubert in his two matches to date this season, while Tandler opened his 1915 campaign with a victory over Baltimore Reddy. Law's superior form in this set-to came as a surprise to a number of wisecracks, who predicted the New Yorker would knock off the newsboy champion.

Despite the fact rumors are being circulated to the effect that Tandler refuses to meet O'Keefe, Tandler, through his manager, Phil Glassman, emphatically announced this morning he is prepared to take on Eddie at any time. According to Glassman, it seems a financial difference, and not Tandler's refusal to meet O'Keefe, is proving a hitch in clinching the match.

Carrigan immediately shifted his team by sending Del Gainer, a right-handed hitter, to bat and play in place of Hoblitzel, who strikes left handed. Gainer made a quick end of the round by hitting into a double play.

McCAHAN AN EASY VICTOR

Wins Pocket Billiard Game From O'Hara by Careful Playing

John McCahan last night won the seventh game in the pocket billiard tournament in progress at Boyle's, Kensington and Allegheny streets, defeating Eddie O'Hara by the score of 75 to 50. McCahan played a careful game all the way. O'Hara was unfortunate and scratched four times at critical stages of the game, and his opponent would then go in and clean up all the remaining balls on the table. Tonight William Heiker will cross cues with Arthur MacBeth.

Scratches: 4. Net score, 75. High run, 14. McCahan—10 9 7 14 12 8 5 5. Total, 79. O'Hara—4 5 7 0 14 2 8 3 9. Total, 66. Scratches: 4. Net score, 68. High run, 14.

MORE HARD WORK FOR PENN ATHLETES

Coaches Force Footballers in Order to Have Endurance at Height for Navy Saturday

Pennsylvania's football team had another stiff practice this afternoon getting ready for Navy. Once more the coaches took the men back to the fundamentals and specialized in tackling and interference. As on Tuesday, the signal drill was long and hard.

Quarterback Berry was on the field in uniform, but the coaches adhered to their determination not to let him take part in any scrimmages for fear of seriously injuring him. Berry spent his time practicing punting and drop kicking. His drop kicking has improved so much that he will probably make all the attempts at this manner of scoring as soon as he is able to get into a game.

The regular preliminary practice was followed by a severe scrimmage between the varsity and scrubs.

REVOIRE BEATS K. O. SWEENEY IN GOOD HARD BATTLE

Local Boxer Outgenerals New Yorker in Final at Douglas

Knockout Sweeney of New York, who recently proved that his sobriquet was not a mere empty fixture by stopping Jack Toland in the first round, was unable to inflict any damage on Eddie Revoire in the final bout at the Douglas Athletic Club last night, although he landed many clean, hard punches, and at the finish the local boxer was the winner.

It was a good, hard contest, in which science and skill were made conspicuous by their absence. Neither of the principals displayed much desire to fight at long range, for they would no sooner be separated by the referee than they would immediately rush in and slug.

Happy Davis and Eddie King, of New York, went six rounds to a draw in the semisemi-round. The contest was devoid of real boxing ability, both hitting away with reckless abandon.

EPISCOPAL ACADEMY ELEVEN STRONG INTERFERING TEAM

Display Against Haverford School Strongest Seen Here in Years—Outlook for Coming Contests and Scholastic Gridiron Gossip

By ROBERT W. MAXWELL

A GOOD interfering team—that is, a team composed of players who can block properly and sweep the tacklers from the path of the man with the ball—always makes a good showing in a football game. It is one of the most difficult things to master in the first part of the season, but once a player learns how to hurt his body in the path of an opponent his value to the team increases and he is almost sure of a place in the regular lineup. Good interferers are scarce in prep school ranks, and any unusual display excites comment.

Episcopal, though beaten by Haverford School last Friday, showed some of the prettiest interfering seen around Philadelphia for many a day. The halfbacks, ends and some of the linemen got into the plays as if they meant business and repeatedly cleared a path for the runner. The man with the ball always passed the line of scrimmage and was brought to earth by the secondary defense. It was a pretty sight to see a play start around one of the ends. Four or five Episcopal players preceded the runner and one by one they would leave their feet, crash into the opposing end, halfback, or any one else who stood in the way, until the man with the ball was the only one left. If the other players on Coach Washburn's team aided the backfield men the game probably would have been closer.

Radnor High School, that light, snappy team which held Penn Charter to a 7-7 tie last week, will play Germantown Academy at Wayne next Friday. Radnor is noted for its speedy eleven, and this year is no exception. The players make up for the weight handicap, however, with a dazzling offense which generally sweeps the opposing team off its feet. Germantown is working hard to correct the faults shown in the Cheltenham game and should play better football against their lighter rivals.

Coach Johnson is having some hard luck at Northeast this year. First, Lou Siegel left school to enter Pennsylvania Military College and now Pickard has natriated at Lebanon Valley College. This leaves two vacancies in the team which are hard to fill. McCutcheon has been doing good work at quarter and probably will take Siegel's old place, and Gamble, who played on the scrubs last year, is likely to succeed Pickard in the backfield. The other two positions are well taken care of by Shay and Heidel, having defeated Wilmington High and Villanova Prep by good scores. Next Saturday, however, the Crimson and Gold will face a tough opponent in Bethlehem Prep at Bethlehem. The Bethlehem team, along with the other two, has already two schools have engaged special coaches for their work. Gus Ziegler is at Haverford and Dick Merrill is at Lehigh. Ralph Farrum, of Dartmouth, is on the all-American team in 1914 and did good work with the Penn Charter line last year.
